

Change Of View Claimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of President Nixon's Safeguard missile defense program claim Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has redefined in mid-controversy the Soviets' first-strike nuclear capability in an attempt to support the administration position.

Sens. J. W. Fulbright and Albert Gore made the charges following Laird's joint appearance Monday with CIA Director Richard Helms before a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Laird and Helms were called to testify in the wake of Safeguard critics' claims that the Pentagon and CIA had conflicting views on Soviet missile intentions.

Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the committee, and Gore, D-Tenn., said they felt the meaning of "first strike capability" had been completely changed by Laird's Monday testimony.

Laird now applies the term to Soviet potential for knocking out American Minuteman sites with the new powerful SS9 rocket, the senators said, without considering United States Polaris submarines.

Fulbright said he had always thought the term meant "the capacity to destroy the retaliatory capacity of your opponent—a knockout blow."

"If the term has no meaning other than a particular weapon, then it would seem the justification for ABM dissolves," Gore said.

Appraisal For Airport Completed

A professional appraisal of land that must be purchased for the expansion of Sedalia Memorial Airport has been completed and is in the hands of the Sedalia Airport Board.

The appraisal was done by Doane Agricultural Service, St. Louis, which is considered the leading appraisal firm in the field. Doane personnel appraised about 315 acres of land located mainly north and east of the present airport, comprising nine tracts. Property sale records in the area over the last five years were used as a basis for the appraisal.

John Pelham, secretary of the Airport Board, said the board will recommend to the City Council that the city go ahead with land acquisition even before federal matching funds become available. Recent budget cuts within the Federal Aviation Administration have limited matching federal funds for airport expansions. A total of $700,000 in matching funds are scheduled for Sedalia, but how soon the money will be allocated is uncertain.

Pelham said either an appraisal or condemnation suit is required to qualify for federal matching funds on land acquisition. The appraisal, which cost $3,000, is provided for in bond funds and will also be matched by federal funds, Pelham said.

To Leave U.S.

Ruth Cain and Jean-Louis Lavole show each other the location of their respective European homes, one permanent, the other temporary. Ruth will leave Thursday for Fulda, Germany where she will spend the summer months as an American Field Service student. Jean-Louis will head back to his permanent home in Rennes, France, on Wednesday, after his ten-month stay with the Thomas Gray, Jr. family, as a foreign exchange student.

French Exchange Student Finishes Stay in Sedalia

Jean-Louis Lavole, Sedalia's foreign exchange student from France, is going home Wednesday, but not without first seeing New York and getting the chance to meet President Nixon in Washington.

What Jean-Louis remembers most about the United States was his first breakfast in New York, which consisted of pancakes. At that time, "I wasn't yet convinced that I liked American food," he said. Now he can eat six pork chops in one meal and still want more.

Jean, in the French tradition, especially likes American girls, but added that, "I have made many friends, both girls and boys. I really hate to leave all these wonderful people, but when I become a rich old man, I hope to return to the United States."

He has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray, 1022 West Seventh, and their son, John since last September. After his week tour, he will fly home to Rennes, France, where he will continue his education.

During the 1968-69 school year, Jean contributed much to Smith-Cotton High School and Sedalia. Included in his activities were tennis, National Honor Society, S-C Archives Staff, and speeches to various clubs and organizations. He also enjoyed a trip this month with Dr. Spencer Hopkins to the Southwest and Mexico, at which time he toured the Grand Canyon.

Jean-Louis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Lavole.

Ruth Cain, another American Field Service student, is leaving Sedalia this week for Fulda, Germany. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Cain, 1112 South Warren.

Compromise Budget Is Given Approval

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — With the question where the money will come from unresolved, House and Senate conferees compromised on a $1.3 billion budget for fiscal year 1969-70.

The total approved by the committee was $6.2 million more than voted earlier by the Senate and $10.9 million less than passed by the House.

One of the biggest cuts in the proposed budget was a $2 million reduction in the Division of Welfare's Medicaid program. It still left the division with a 34 percent increase over last year.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, Senate Appropriations chairman, and Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, his House counterpart, said they would recommend approval by the respective houses.

The committee left out a $460,000 request by the University of Missouri for a medical school in Kansas City.

Patterson, however, said he didn't think the Legislature had to approve the school before university officials could decide to go ahead with its plans. The university's budget is a lump sum and does not stipulate specific programs.

The conference agreed to limit rental rates by state agencies to $2.50 a square foot. That will not include payment of utilities, Patterson said.

Community Action Meeting is Tonight

A special meeting of the Pettis County Community Action Corp., to discuss recent developments in the areas of school integration and public housing will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Taylor Chapel Methodist Church, 400 North Lamine.

Dan McMahon, president of the county board, said the object of the meeting is to encourage citizens "to become involved in the problems of the community."

remember is that we are free to launch operations and the camp is still there," said the government spokesman.

American spokesmen have said air strikes are not too effective against the enemy artillery because the Russian-made 85mm guns are employed in mountain caves and protected by steel doors when not in use.

But U.S. 7th Air Force tactical bombers found a break in the heavy cloud cover that has shrouded Ben Het for several days and were able to strike North Vietnamese troops encircling the camp Monday.

State's Income Tax Hike Debate Begins

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House voted 95-65 in favor of a boost in individual income taxes ranging up to 46 per cent.

The vote indicated only two members were not voting in the 163-member House and gave the Senate a clear record the House favored an increase in individual income taxes.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The house today began debating a plan to boost individual income taxes up to 46 per cent and earmark the first $35 million for schools.

The new effort came on a senate-passed bill that would permit use of federal rules and interpretations in setting the state income tax. The bill as it reached the House was a routine 70-page implementation of authority granted by the voters in a constitutional amendment last year.

It was an effort by the House Democratic leaders to break a deadlock between the House and Senate in individual income taxes. The House has attempted the follow the line of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for the income tax increase.

The Senate leaders have argued that the individual income tax boost is not needed in the next two years.

Rep. Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader and head of the house delegation to a joint conference that has been unable to reach a compromise, introduced the new amendment today.

He said he was sure most senators have become convinced their leaders will not compromise and now the senators are ready to accept an individual income tax hike. The senate rejected the tax boost for individuals in another bill earlier.

Rabbitt said the tax would become effective next Jan. 1 and would produce an estimated $34 million more in individual income tax revenues.

As the House began the debate about 30 residents of Kinloch, a poor community in St. Louis County, entered the back gallery holding aloft signs that accused the Legislature of shirking education. They were told to put the signs on the floor if they wished to stay in the gallery.

After several orders they complied.

Twice Monday House conferees ignored meetings with Senate conference committee members as bills were being considered in the House. Finally the conference went into session and did nothing except, perhaps, to solidify the House-Senate split.

Blackwell, Senate president pro tem and leader in the revolt against new taxes, issued a statement in which he demanded the House poll its members directly on the issue of an increased individual income tax boost to the routine senate bill provided that opportunity for the house.

Earlier Monday Blackwell received a reply to his demand for money information from Revenue Collector Thomas C. Gilstrap.

Home Rule Document 'Polished'

The first "polishing" session of the Sedalia Home Rule Commission will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the City Council chambers of City Hall.

At that meeting the results of seven months work by the Home Rule commissioners, whose endeavors spanned 19 separate committees, will be refined, edited, amended if necessary and framed in legal terminology.

Earl Crawford, a local attorney with extensive experience in this area, will assist the Home Rule Commission in getting the documents into shape. Crawford was a member of the state legislative research staff formed after the state Constitution was adopted in 1945 to amend state statutes to harmonize with the new Constitution. He also was a member of the state "Little Hoover Commission" that studied reorganization of state government in 1955, and has written a book and taught in the area of statutory construction.

Crawford said he thought it might require two meetings to get the proposed city charter into proper form, adding, "As a whole it's a good piece of work. Someone has spent a lot of time."

The Home Rule Commission must present the proposed charter to the voters by Nov. 5, one year after the commission was elected. However indications are that the vote will come considerably before then.

U.S. Missile Production Stopped by Recent Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. nuclear missile production has been halted for perhaps the rest of this year because of a crippling fire at an Atomic Energy Commission plant.

This rather stunning situation, unpublicized by the government, is disclosed in the back section of a 1,400-page volume of official testimony recently released by a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Government sources also give strong indications that testing of antimissile warheads may be delayed by the blaze that hit a plutonium-handling facility at Rocky Flats, Colo., May 11. The official AEC position is that Safeguard deployment schedules will not be setback.

The impact of the fire, first serious blaze at an AEC plant, was laid before Congress behind closed doors nine days later when AEC leaders urgently appealed for $45 million to make repairs.

Most nuclear weapons require plutonium to trigger their atomic warheads.

Air Force Maj. Gen. E. B. Giller, assigned to the AEC, told subcommittee members the impact on the weapons production schedule would last "a few months to perhaps a year," according to preliminary estimates.

Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., asked Giller: "Will this fire retard you in the production of all missiles?"

Giller's immediate words in reply were deleted from the published transcript but then he said: "We are estimating at this moment six months plus or minus three, meaning a maximum of maybe nine."

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, AEC chairman, termed the $45 million request to get the Rocky Flats plant back into operation "very urgent."

"If we didn't receive the additional appropriation it would delay by an undetermined amount the production dates (deleted)," Seaborg said.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, told a reporter Monday night, "I regard this as a serious situation."

Egyptian Plane Downed In Air Battle With Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli warplanes shot down an Egyptian MIG today over the Gulf of Suez, an Israeli army spokesman said.

He said the plane was hit by cannon fire from an Israeli fighter, exploded in the air and crashed in Egyptian territory. No parachute was seen.

Earlier, Israeli spokesmen reported Egyptian commandos slipped across the Suez Canal for the third time in three days to raid an Israeli army position. They battled the Israelis with light arms and grenades.

Israeli army spokesmen said the Arabs crossed north of Port Taufiq at the southern end of the canal under a covering artillery barrage late Monday night. They said one Israeli soldier was killed.

A communique from Cairo said the Egyptians "occupied the Israeli position and killed all the soldiers there and destroyed two armored cars." It added that the Israelis tried to make a counterassault "but our forces foiled the attempt" and returned safely to their base carrying two wounded.

On Sunday night three Egyptians were killed in a raid on the same installation. The Israeli radio's Arab language service reported today shrapnel found in the three bodies was from Soviet shells, indicating the Egyptians were killed by covering fire from their own guns.

No casualties were reported from the Saturday raid.

The commando raid followed two heavy artillery battles at the southern end of the canal Monday in which Egypt claimed Israeli forces suffered heavy losses. There was no confirmation of this from Tel Aviv.

A communique from Cairo said Monday's artillery battles resulted in "the destruction of enemy reinforcements" which the Israelis had set up in the Shatt and Port Taufiq areas. It said there was only light damage on the Egyptian side.

Early today Arab saboteurs blew up an oil pipe at Kishon fishing harbor on the outskirts of Haifa, Israel's biggest port city with a population of 210,000.

Plane Crashes in Busy Street

MIAMI (AP)—A disabled DC4 cargo plane that crashed into a busy Miami street Monday had undergone repairs for a mechanical problem shortly before takeoff, a Federal Aviation Administration official said today.

"It had been scheduled to depart about noon but had to return for repairs after taxiing out on the runway," said Richard Skully. "I'm not certain what the problem was."

The four engine craft took off at 3:40 p.m. Eight minutes later it came down on a residential and business area, a mile east of Miami's International Airport, cutting a four-block swath of death and flaming destruction.

Police today sealed off the area to everyone as investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board searched charred rubble and wreckage where 10 people were killed and another dozen were injured.

A police spokesman estimated the over-all property loss at about $1 million.

The known dead included the plane's four crew members and six persons on the ground. Another dozen were injured.

Hours after the crash, a half mile northeast of Miami International Airport, rescue workers probed the smoldering wreckage and rubble for more bodies.

"We're sure there will be more," said Police Lt. James Reese.

A Red Cross worker said he believed there were at least two more bodies in the debris.

A team of plane crash investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board began examining the wreckage today in an attempt to learn the cause of the accident.

The Dominicana Air Lines craft was attempting to circle back to the airport from which it had just departed, one of its four engines was out and a second was smoking.

Maxine Burmester's television winked out at 3:40 p.m. as the plane sheared power lines a block and a half from the apartment building where she lives and bounced off a roof top.

"It was coming at a terrific speed," she said. "I couldn't move before it hit."

A wing struck the corner of the Burmesters' apartment building about a dozen feet from where she sat.

The plane crumpled the second story of a medical center, skipped over a bakery, plowed a furrow in the roof of the next building, took the corner off an auto transmission shop, knocked over the pumps of a gasoline station, and slammed burning into Charles Knapp's auto body shop, killing four persons in the shop.

Pieces of the plane and debris from the buildings flew forward. One engine demolished a car 20 yards down busy 36th Street. Other pieces sailed 50 to 100 yards farther.

The plane spewed burning fuel from its own tanks and more flaming gasoline poured from the ruptured service sta-

Attack on US Base Beaten Off

SAIGON (AP) — Bloody fighting raged around the besieged Ben Het Special Forces camp Monday and it sustained its heaviest artillery bombardment since May 1. But U.S. spokesmen said today a convoy broke through the encircling enemy troops with badly needed ammunition and supplies.

The U.S. Command said the convoy, the first to reach Ben Het in a week, pushed through by road from Dak To. Previously supplies had to be dropped by cargo planes and only medical evacuation helicopters risked landing because of the daily artillery barrages.

South Vietnamese infantrymen backed by U.S. artillery and planes killed 105 North Vietnamese troops around the camp Monday in some of the heaviest fighting there since May 1. South Vietnamese casualties were five killed and 15 wounded.

North Vietnamese gunners poured in 195 artillery, mortar and recoilless rifle shells into the camp 280 miles northeast of Saigon. The U.S. Command reported some of the American Green Beret advisers and artillery crew stationed there were killed and wounded, but it declined to give figures.

South Vietnamese headquarters said four civilian irregulars and four of their dependents were killed in the shelling.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the infantrymen were sweeping the area around Ben Het to "take pressure off." But despite the convoy break-through he said it was still hard to tell who controls the area.

Military spokesmen said a North Vietnamese regiment of up to 2,000 men has surrounded Ben Het and the camp has been under daily bombardment from heavy artillery in Laos, Cambodia and the six-mile stretch between Ben Het and the border.

"The most important thing to remember is that we are free to launch operations and the camp is still there," said the government spokesman.

American spokesmen have said air strikes are not too effective against the enemy artillery because the Russian-made 85mm guns are employed in mountain caves and protected by steel doors when not in use.

But U.S. 7th Air Force tactical bombers found a break in the heavy cloud cover that has shrouded Ben Het for several days and were able to strike North Vietnamese troops encircling the camp Monday.

House Test Ahead For Tax Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's surtax extension bill is apparently set for its first House floor test Wednesday with both sides saying any vote will be close.

The Democratic leadership made final checks Monday and seemed to be satisfied the House Rules Committee would vote the bill out on a "closed rule" basis, which means a straight yes or no vote, with no amendments considered.

Surtax opponents contemplate challenging the "closed rule," but they have been putting their main emphasis on defeating the measure. Earlier, House liberals had attempted to persuade the committee to allow a vote on extending the income tax surcharge for less than a year.

The Nixon proposal, endorsed by a split committee vote, would continue the tax at 10 per cent for six months and five per cent for another six months. The tax expires June 30 unless extended.

If the effort to defeat the no-amendment rule fails, opponents then must work to defeat the measure outright. Passage depends on solid Republican support plus a generous slice of the Democratic majority.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, opposes the bill and he has written to all House Democrats that the measure must be killed to force quicker action on general tax reform.

The Nixon bill will pass, said Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., but "we still will have to get 80 or 90 Democratic votes. I do not believe the Democratic leadership would be so ineffective as not to produce those 80 or 90 votes."

Byrnes, leading GOP House tax expert, pegged Republican support at 120 to 130 votes—two thirds of the GOP House membership. His Democratic figures amount to a bare majority of House Democrats. The bill has the endorsement of the Democratic leadership.

Byrnes voiced the basic administration argument for the proposal, saying the surtax is necessary to fight inflation. "We need to mobilize all our efforts to stop the increased cost of living."

Stockyard at Brunswick Is Ordered to Conform

BRUNSWICK — The Brunswick Sales Co., operator of a stockyard here, has been ordered to stop violating fair trade and record-keeping requirements under the Packers and Stockyards Act, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is registered as a livestock market agency and dealer.

USDA Judicial Officer Thomas J. Flavin ordered Brunswick Sales Co., to cease and desist from:

- Making discriminatory payments to certain livestock consignors.
- Guaranteeing the price at which livestock consigned to it would be sold.
- Failing to keep adequate records.

The order — like a permanent injunction — is used to insure future compliance with the Packers and Stockyards Act. The firm was also directed to keep complete records.

Brunswick Sales Co., continued to the order when it answered the administrative complaint issued by USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration. It waived oral hearing.

The firm admitted USDA jurisdiction and neither admitted nor denied the other allegations.

Under the Packers and Stockyards Act, it is unlawful for any market agency to engage in any discriminatory practices in connection with selling livestock on a commission basis. Market agencies selling on commission may not guarantee prices at which consigned livestock will be sold.

Great Spider Hunt Underway

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man walked in and plunked a spider down on Delona Davis' desk. Her big, gray-blue eyes got bigger and grayer. But she didn't scream.

The critter was in a pill bottle. He was dead. Besides, she was getting used to it. This kind of thing had been going on dozens of times a day for more than two weeks.

As receptionist for the county health office, the little brunette has been deluged with spiders, of all shapes, colors and sizes—dead and alive—since the beginning of the South American violin spider hunt. She prefers them dead.

It started when Mel Thompson, a naturalist, found one of the brown violin spiders—about the size of a dime—in a suburban Sierra Madre park. Drop for drop, the violin spider's venom is deadlier than a rattlesnake's.

Tornado Injures Two People

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Farm buildings were shattered by a tornado west of Wichita Monday afternoon, but only two persons were injured.

Bill Cramer was hospitalized with chest injuries suffered when his pickup truck was tossed around while he was rounding up cattle.

Clarence Mayschmeyer sustained facial cuts and bruises. He and his 8-year-old daughter, Ann, were running for shelter when the child was torn from his grasp. She was blown behind a shed and escaped injury.

The twister caused some damage at seven farms in a six-mile path.

The funnel's full fury was vented on the Clarence J. Thome farm where every building was flattened; 10 head of cattle and an estimated 5,000 to 7,000 out of 10,000 turkeys were killed.

Thome and his wife were away from home, cutting wheat. Their daughters, Arlene, 21, Janie, 13, and Shirley, 10, fled to a neighbor's storm shelter in time to avoid harm.

The four-bedroom Thome home was picked cleanly off its foundation and was splintered into kindling 100 yards away. A pickup truck, parked in front of the house, was hurled 300 yards and torn in two.

Ripening wheat in the path of the storm was flattened. Hail and heavy rain hit Wichita.

The funnel was sighted by weather bureau employees in Wichita as it approached the city and they watched it until it dissipated.

Eighty miles east of Wichita, another twister struck five miles northwest of Fredonia, damaging a house in the Ruxton community.

Paul Uhlmann, Trade Board Member, Dies

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Uhlmann, 84, board chairman of Standard Milling Co., died of an apparent heart attack at his home Monday.

Uhlmann was host for many years to the Kansas Wheat Improvement field day. He sponsored research at Kansas State University, leading to development of drought-resistant wheat and improvement of the original strain of Turkey wheat.

Born in Germany, Uhlmann came to Kansas City in 1906. At his death, he held the longest tenure on the Kansas City Board of Trade.

He was active in resettlement of European refugees of World War II, and in 1949 was named national director of the Industrial Institute of Israel, promoting industry for the new nation.

In 1964 he received the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanities award. It was presented by Elliott Roosevelt in a ceremony attended by former President Harry S. Truman.

His widow and two sons survive.

Showing of Movie Banned in Kansas

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — The Johnson County District Court will be asked to bar further showing of the movie "I Am Am Curious (Yellow)" until obscenity proceedings against the Swedish film are completed.

James W. Boushak, county attorney, said he would make the request today if the Dickinson Operating Co. does not voluntarily suspend public showing of the film.

Judge Herbert W. Walton and attorneys for both sides saw the movie in a private showing at a theater Monday.

Judge Walton scheduled hearings for today and Wednesday.

Party-Splitting Battle is Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert H. Finch, long a confidant and political ally of President Nixon, apparently has won his fight to have Dr. John H. Knowles nominated as the nation's No. 1 health officer.

But the victory raises the specter of a party-splitting battle in the Senate, with the administration and a coalition of generally liberal GOP Young Turks pitted against the venerable Republican leader, Everett M. Dirksen.

It was learned Monday night Nixon is almost certain to nominate Knowles as assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Knowles, HEW Secretary Finch's long-time choice, has been opposed by the powerful and conservative American Medical Association and its prominent ally, Dirksen.

Knowles is director of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, and until Monday the AMA opposition had been attributed to his advocacy of such things as universal health care plans.

But a Wheaton, Md., physician, Dr. James J. Nordlund, said in a letter to The Washington Post that Dirksen's administrative assistant, John R. Gornien, had told him that "because of the heavy financial support given the Republicans during the recent elections, the American Medical Association was insistent on nominating one assistant secretary, in particular the assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs."

Gornien did not deny the report. The AMA had no comment.

Knowles said at his Massachusetts summer home Monday night the unofficial reports were "news to me. I haven't heard a peep."

If Dirksen sticks to his opposition, the issue of who is to be assistant secretary will pale beside the larger issue of who controls presidential nominations, the President or Sen. Dirksen.

Dirksen claims credit for blocking other Nixon appointments and for forcing the removal of one holdover Democratic official.

But the Illinois senator has no liking for a showdown that could, if he lost, seriously damage his prestige as party leader and thus crimp his power.

Gertrude Helps Find A Safer Bus Seat

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — With the help of Gertrude—a wooden headed dummy—the Ohio Department of Public Transportation and the American Seating Co. think they have come up with a safe seat for school buses.

Gertrude's head was bumped against the tops of bus seats thousands of times in the process of developing the new seat made of high strength fiber glass, reinforced with plastic and padded.

The seat is designed to absorb energy in the event of a crash, with a special absorption device built into the top.

School authorities decided against safety belts as the answer to bus safety because of the time and trouble it would occasion on the part of drivers to see that all his pupils were belted at all times.

FBI Admits Change In Wiretapping Log

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has admitted the FBI changed—without informing the Justice Department—a recorded log of wiretapped conversations involving former heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay.

In disclosing this to Clay's attorneys, the department Monday contended it did not learn of the FBI action until June 13, several days after copies of what were purported to be the original logs were filed in U.S. District Court in Houston.

John S. Martin Jr. and Michael T. Epstein, who are handling the government's case against Clay, said the original record contained the notation, "Sum up in memo."

But the hand-written phrase was blanked out on documents submitted to the court concerning a Sept. 4, 1964, telephone conversation between Clay and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The discrepancy came to light when Clay's lawyers, unsatisfied with copies, demanded to see the original transcripts. Epstein and Martin then checked with the FBI and found the panned-in portion was left off copies submitted in court.

Government attorneys were unhappy about the affair, expressing concern that the differences would cast doubts on the validity of the documents themselves.

No reason was given for the omission. The FBI had no comment. And special FBI Agent Robert R. Nichols, who supervised the tap on King's telephone, claimed in an affidavit the notation was of no consequence.

"When I initially scanned this log," Nichols said, "I made the handwritten notation 'sum up in memo,' as a flag to myself to consider this as an item to be placed in memorandum form. "Upon subsequent detailed review of the entire log and evaluation of its contents," he added, "I decided the substance of the information did not warrant the preparation of a memorandum."

As summarized in the record, the conversation which Nichols considered unimportant was one in which Clay advised King to "watch out for them whites."

Clay, sentenced to five years' imprisonment for refusing induction into the armed forces, is seeking further federal court hearings in an effort to overturn his conviction.

Meanwhile, Clay's lawyers contended at the Houston hearing the government took positions which "test the naivete of even their most willing believers."

"In short," they said, "the gap of credibility in this case now approaches a crater."

The Clay attorneys, headed by Charles Morgan Jr. of Atlanta, cited statements by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover last week during a controversy over whether Hoover, or the late Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, authorized the plan to tap King's telephone.

At that time, Hoover claimed the wiretap was installed on King's phone at the Southern Christian Leadership Conference headquarters in Atlanta.

"But in this court," the lawyers noted, "the undisputed testimony has been that the wiretap was on Dr. King's home telephone."

'Teen-ager' Honor Goes to a Refugee

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three years ago Gabor Garai was an unknown Hungarian schoolboy applying for political asylum in America. Today he is the 1969 Outstanding Teen-ager of Pennsylvania.

The 17-year-old refugee is among the nation's 50 finalists for the coveted title of Outstanding Teen-ager of America for 1969. President Nixon will make the $1,000 scholarship award later this summer.

Garai couldn't speak a word of English when he stayed behind on a three month's visitor's visa in 1966.

This fall he goes on a scholarship to Harvard. He has already won and turned down other scholarships to Yale, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania. At George Washington High School here he scored 1410 in his college board exams, was class president and head of the student association.

PROPER DIGESTION IS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH

By Carl J. Hamilton, D.C.

Today we will consider digestion and the part it takes in helping the body make full use of the food we eat.

When food enters the body it undergoes several changes, chemical and physical. The first physical change is the grinding it receives from the teeth. While this is going on, the first of the digestive juices is pouring over it from the salivary glands located in the neck and mouth. As the food passes along the digestive tract, other digestive juices are added until it becomes of gruel-like consistency. This preparation of the food is called digestion.

Next the food is filtered through the lining of the stomach and intestine. It is taken into the blood stream and distributed to the cells of the body. This step is called absorption.

The cells of the body pick up and make use of the food material brought to them by the blood stream in a third step called assimilation.

Indigestion, a term frequently used in America, results from some failure in the first step. This can be from faulty preparation of the food, eating too hurriedly, washing the food down with liquid before it is properly chewed and mixed with salivary juices, or even from eating in a discordant atmosphere that places the person in tension.

It is extremely worthwhile to develop the following basic habits that will aid digestion and promote good health.

1. Food should be chewed thoroughly before it is swallowed.

2. For best digestion food should be tasty and have eye appeal.

3. Food should be eaten in moderate amount. A person should never feel stuffed after a meal.

4. It is better to eat a few foods rather than many at a meal.

5. It is an aid to digestion not to do heavy physical work immediately after a meal.

6. The mind should be free of unpleasant thoughts during a meal. Heated arguments and emotional upsets have caused many a case of indigestion.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilmore, 707 West 11th, were both in satisfactory condition Tuesday at Bothwell Hospital after they were admitted Monday following a disturbance at the Gilmore home.

According to the police report, police were called to the Gilmore home at 11:26 p.m. Monday when a neighbor reported that Gilmore was beating up his wife.

Officers R. D. Guymon and Herbert Mayfield investigated, and were admitted to the home where they found Mrs. Gilmore lying on the floor screaming for help.

While the officers were there Gilmore started hitting his wife. The officers restrained him but Gilmore continued to threaten Mrs. Gilmore and to use profane language. He reportedly stated that he would kill her once the officers left.

Arrangements were made for Mrs. Gilmore and her children to go next door. Later she called and said she wanted to sign a warrant on her husband for assault and disturbing the peace, which she did. Guymon and Mayfield went to Gilmore's house to serve the warrant.

In the process of getting dressed, Gilmore smashed three dresser drawers while looking for socks and a shirt. He also picked up a swing set that was in a box and threw it out the rear door.

The officers forced him to leave the house to take him to the station. When Officer Mayfield started to read the warrant to him at the station, Gilmore tore it from his hands and attempted to swing at Mayfield. In the attempt to subdue Gilmore, Gilmore sustained two cuts on the head. He was taken to Bothwell

'Mud Pack' Treatment Unexpected

A real mud pack could have been obtained at Mr. John's Beauty Salon, 401B South Lamine, the last two days as mud and water covered the floor. The owner, John Strine, thinks excavation for the new county jail is to blame.

The salon, located in the basement of the Knights of Columbus building, was covered with one-fourth inch of mud and one and a half inches of water Monday morning. According to Strine, four people worked throughout the day cleaning up the place only to return Tuesday morning and find another inch and a half of water. The furnace room was covered with mud and the water there was about eight inches deep.

The salon was closed for business Tuesday. Strine does not know when he will be able to reopen since there was damage to the water heater and other furnishings. There was no estimate of damage, but Strine stated that he would lose about $100 each day that he remained closed.

A spokesman for the Mid Missouri Heating and Plumbing Company which is clearing out the mud and water and attempting to find the source of the trouble, said that the damage was done by surface water that had come through an open sewer line. The location of the sewer line has not been determined.

The adjoining property to the south of the salon is the construction site of the new county jail. Strine stated that he thought the construction company might have cut into a sewer line during its excavation.

Woody Garrison, city building and electrical inspector, said a sewer line runs between the two lots and that it is likely that the lines to each lot are connected, since at one time both lots were owned by the same person.

According to Garrison, Heimsoth and Borchers Construction Co., Cole Camp, contractors for the new jail, have not applied for a permit to construct the building.

The city code states that the permit is to be applied for prior to the start of construction. If a permit is not applied for before construction starts, then the permit fee may be doubled.

Under the 1967 Uniform Building Code the fee is $226.50 for the first $100,000 and $1 for each additional $1,000. The cost of the county jail is estimated at $146,059 so a permit would cost $272.50. This amount could be doubled.

Merger Would Be Greeted With Anti-Trust Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department threatens an antitrust suit if International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. and Hartford Fire Insurance Co. go ahead with their planned $6 billion merger.

But ITT said Monday it "intends to move forward with the merger of the companies depending on the outcome of the vote of the stockholders" of the two firms.

The companies have agreed to the merger—the nation's largest in terms of assets. It would link the country's 11th biggest industrial corporation with the sixth largest property and liability insurance firm in the United States.

While announcing its threat to bring suit, the government didn't disclose what grounds it would cite in its complaint. ITT also didn't detail the grounds as related to its lawyers, but the firm said the grounds "appeared to be novel and untried, without legislative mandate from Congress and unsanctioned by previous court cases."

ITT said it is satisfied that the link-up would not violate anti-trust laws. It said the proposed litigation "appears to be part of the announced effort by the Justice Department to bend the antitrust laws to stop mergers of large companies regardless of the fact that there is no discernible adverse impact upon competition."

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and his agency's antitrust chief, Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. McClaren, have announced the government probably will challenge any merger involving one of the country's 200 largest corporations.

If the government follows through on its threatened suit, it would be the fourth time in three months that the Justice Department has sought to check growth of conglomerates.

In April, three days after ITT took over the Canteen Corp., an antitrust suit was brought. Canteen is a national food and vending company.

In January, 1968, when faced with government opposition ITT scrapped its plans to take over the American Broadcasting Co.

Last year, the nation's largest baking firm, one of the two largest hotel chains, the second-largest car-rental firm, a major home-building firm and a leading chemical producer were taken over by ITT.

ITT had sales of $4.1 billion last year. It has assets of more than $4 billion. Hartford's assets are valued at $2 billion. ITT has about 75 subsidiaries, all of which are major insurance purchasers.

Anti-Maoist Groups Active in China

TOKYO (AP) — The struggle between Maoists and anti-Maoists is "still acute" and "far from being eradicated" in Communist China, Peking's official New China News Agency reported today.

It quoted an article in the party newspaper, People's Daily, that urged Maoists to "form a people's war of public opinion" against those within the party who are spreading "vicious views to corrupt the revolutionary ranks."

The news agency report came two months after Chinese Communists announced at the closing session of the ninth party Congress April 24 they had defeated counter-revolutionary elements within the party and government.

Railroad Collision Injures Passengers

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island Rail Road train entered Pennsylvania Station on a wrong track Monday, then backed into another train, hospitalizing five passengers and injuring 70 others, a railroad spokesman said.

Service into and out of the busy Manhattan terminal was paralyzed for hours, stranding thousands of homeward-bound commuters.

In an unrelated incident in Queens, a short-circuit fire halted another LIRR train. Some passengers panicked and jumped to the tracks. Six were injured.

The Penn Station collision involved incoming trains from Hempstead and Babylon.

A LIRR spokesman said the Hempstead train backed into the halted Babylon train after finding a third train already at the platform.

The LIRR is the busiest commuter line in the nation, carrying 90,000 round-trip and 80,000 one-way passengers daily.

First regular shipment of milk by rail (Orange County to New York City) was made in 1841.

Randall Will Speak As Ship Is Christened

United States Congressman William J. Randall, Independence, will be the principal speaker for the June 28 christening of the Navy oiler-supply ship "Kansas City" at the General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy, Mass.

The congressman's remarks will immediately precede the 10 a.m. christening and launching of the 659-foot "Kansas City" by Mrs. Harry Darby, wife of a Kansas City, Kan., industrialist and former United States Senator.

Congressman Randall represents the Fourth Missouri District, which includes Sedalia and a portion of Kansas City.

The "Kansas City", which will provide combat ships with rapid at-sea replenishment of fuels, ammunition and other provisions, is scheduled for delivery to the Navy in early 1970.

Climbs Bridge Tower In Depressive Mood

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenneth Boyle, 28, of Jersey City, N.J., was driving across the George Washington Bridge toward New York City when he stopped his car, got out and climbed one of the 650-foot towers.

Police said he was unhappy with a family dispute, apparently with his wife and mother-in-law, who were in the car.

"You go your way and I'll go mine," Boyle told a policeman who tried to talk him into climbing down. After two hours, several policemen subdued him and took him to Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center for observation.

Latest Men's Fashions Shown to Rotarians

The return of men's fashions of today to those in the mode around the turn of the century were shown to members of the Rotary Club at its Monday noon meeting at Hotel Bothwell by Robert Johnson, manager of the Sedalia Russell Bros., Clothing Company store.

Johnson came to the meeting with all the trappings to make his point — suits, pants, ties and shirts for the modern male and compared them with fashions illustrated in salesmen's sample books used in 1900.

The double breasted suits with the short but wide lapel, the double breasted vest, the tight-fitting pants and the wide ties are modern creations with the look of 1900. Johnson said the articles of men's wear that have not undergone great change is mens underwear and the only change here is in the wide range of solid, bright colors.

Jim Edwards, manager of the J. C. Penney Company store here, traced the history of the company from its founding in Kemmerer, Wyo., by Mr. Penney as a Golden Rule Store more than 50 years ago to its chain of 1,660 stores today doing more than $3 billion in annual sales and with financing furnished by 58,000 stockholders.

The program was a presentation by the Trade and Professional Relations Committee of the club and was introduced by Floyd Priddy, June Program Chairman.

During the club's business meeting the membership voted unanimously to support the Girl Scout's permanent building fund for Camp Sacajawea with a gift of $1,500 from its project fund to be given at the rate of $500 per year for three years. Dr. Stanley Fisher, club president, presided over the business session and handled passage of the proposal. The president urged members to attend the Rotary Camp dedication ceremony to be held on Thursday evening at Rotary Camp Hohn Boy Scout Reservation. The Sedalia Rotary Club and other clubs in this Rotary district have provided the finances for the Rotary Camp development. Gaylan Cope will be in charge of the Sedalia delegation attending the dedication ceremony.

Guests for the meeting were Charles Rhinehart, St. Genevieve, Mo., artist in residence for one week in Sedalia under Missouri Arts Council sponsorship with K. U. Love; the Rev. Dennis Craft, First Methodist Church minister, with the Rev. Tom Hall and Pete Rader, of Jefferson City with Arnold Fischer. The visitors were introduced by Donald Barnes.

County's Affluence Is Given Black Eye

KANSAS CITY (AP) — There are many poor, undernourished persons living in Platte County, the fourth most affluent county in Missouri, witnesses testified in U.S. District Court Monday.

Children are subject to physical and mental retardation because their mothers don't have adequate diets while pregnant, the witnesses said.

The hearing was on a petition to enjoin the U.S. Department of Agriculture from denying federal food benefits to low-income families. The department contends that county officials must ask for the food programs. The plaintiffs say the government can distribute the food without county requests.

Fifty Missouri counties do not have food stamp programs. The plaintiffs are six Missouri low-income residents who seek to represent all other poor people in the state.

The hearing was one of 25 similar actions in courts throughout the nation.

Mrs. Francis Stockton, a nurse in the Head Start program in Clay and Platte counties, testified that many of the 3-to-6-year-old children she works with do not get proper food.

They live mainly on a starch diet and eat meat only once a week, have poor skin color, are apathetic, have continual colds; wear poor clothing, "simply because their parents can't afford better," Mrs. Stockton said. "I just don't see how some of these families get along."

Alfred Brown, a deputy director of the Human Development Corp. in Columbia, Mo., said the physical condition of many families in a nine-county area around Columbia is very poor.

He said Howard County ranked third in the nation in the incident of infant mortality, due to malnutrition of expectant mothers.

Brown said a poor rural family's starchy diet consists of potatoes, beans, neckbones, pig tails, hog ears, chicken kidneys and livers. He said the families seldom have bread and milk.

G.E. Rittenhouse, a Human Resources Corp. official in Platte County, told of one family that had no meat for 45 days.

Asked by an attorney if Platte County residents want a program, Rittenhouse said,

"The people in Platte County who need food want it."

Mrs. Lucille Harris of Trenton described undernourished children in Grundy County as "apathetic and lifeless, lacking energy, and unable to keep up with other kids even when playing."

St. Louis is the only area in the state with the federal food stamp program.

The Missouri Legislature is considering bills that would permit the federal food stamp program in up to 25 counties in the state.

Remembers an Old Debt and Pays Off

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Back in 1907, Richey J. Sunners of Owensville, Ind., used to sell 20 copies of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat a day.

The newspaper erred one day and sent the 13-year-old newsboy 25 copies. Sunners sold the extra copies and never was billed for them.

Last week, Sunners—now 75 and living in Louisville, Ky.—wrote the Globe-Democrat explaining the situation and enclosing 25 cents in payment.

"The records will show that I owe it—it's coming to you," he explained.

Sunners said Monday he never forgot he owed the money. He said he "got to thinking about it again" and decided to settle up.

Lots of Dogs and Cats

Tempora mutantur!

Indeed, times do change. Except possibly the annual wail against that part of the dog population which runs loose in the community particularly during the garden months of spring and summer.

It is the same old story year after year despite limitations imposed by the dog ordinance. The subject is worn threadbare by editorial writers. Any appeal to dog owners for restraint of letting their animals run loose, has interest only to young families starting new household and garden ventures.

Periodic complaints to the newspaper are redundant. But for originality of expression more apropos than we can put it, let us listen to one Sedalian's emphasis on the subject:

"I've got something to say about dogs. If you don't want to print it, don't."

"What this is about is the dog law. In my neighborhood there's at least 50 dogs in five blocks and not 10 out of that many have a collar or license tag. All are running loose."

"What I would like to know is what these dog catchers are for. Us taxpayers must be paying them for setting in their office. As I had one out here, he heard my story. He went up the street. That was all of it. The same dogs are still running stray over gardens and everything."

"I have a little dog but I keep him vaccinated and city tags on him."

"Whoever passed this dog law should be punished or see it lived up to. I talked to Mayor Walker and Chief Miller. They still put me on the dog catcher. For no good."

—O—

Here's something to ponder if you think there are too many dogs in Sedalia. In the United States 35,000,000 puppies and 50,000,000 kittens are bred annually. They're coming in at the rate of 10,000 an hour. About 25,000,000 are disposed of by killing or dumping.

A recent census, how compiled we'll never know, revealed 90,000,000 dogs and cats in America. Of this number there are 15,000,000 homeless dogs and 25,000,000 homeless cats. Some local citizens speculate that most of them are roaming around Sedalia, particularly during the night.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says Senate Stampedes Too Easily

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Sen. Frank Church of Idaho delivered a statesmanlike address last week urging his Senate colleagues to reassert their right under the constitution to "advise and consent" regarding foreign affairs.

He pointed out that the Senate had so abdicated in regard to the conduct of foreign policy that the White House had got the United States embroiled in problems which cost billions. Sen. Church, a Democrat, had democratic presidents in mind more than Republicans, along with their policies on Spanish military bases, the Dominican Republic and, of course, Vietnam.

Though Sen. Church is 100 per cent right, the fault in large part is that of the Senate. It gets stampeded too easily. More and more, senators have become like Idaho sheep, easily herded into approving whatever the executive, whether a Democrat or a Republican, proposes.

The herd instinct was never more apparent than when 96 senators were stampeded into a quickie approval of a man who will preside over the courts of the United States for the next 10 to 15 years — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

After only one hour and 40 minutes of Senate judiciary committee consideration, Burger's confirmation reached the Senate floor. During the debate which followed, Sen. Gaylord Nelson or Wisconsin walked over to sit beside big Jim Eastland of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee. He showed Eastland a column quoting Burger as being opposed to the jury system, to the Fifth Amendment and to the traditional American principle that a man is innocent until proven guilty.

"This column raises important questions," said the senator from Wisconsin.

"Oh, you can't believe anything Drew Pearson writes," replied the gentlemen from Mississippi.

"That's not the issue here," replied Nelson. "The issue is whether the new chief justice was asked his opinion on these questions."

"Here is the record," said Eastland, showing a typewritten transcript of Senate hearings toward Nelson.

—No Readable Record—

The record was not printed and had not been made available to other senators to read. It was a private copy held by the chairman of the judiciary committee and it was impossible to do more than thumb through it during the brief Senate debate on Burger's confirmation.

When the vote was taken, not one senator really knew what Burger's views were on the most important issues of American jurisprudence. But this was their own fault. Under the Senate rules, any senator could have forced the postponement of the debate.

The vote on Burger was just as hurried as on the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, which gave LBJ a free hand to wage war in Vietnam and which Senate leaders have been regretting ever since. There were two dissenting votes on the Tonkin Resolution — by Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska. In the Burger vote there were three dissenting voices — Nelson's and those of Steve Young, Ohio, and Gene McCarthy, Minn. William Fulbright of Arkansas abstained. All are Democrats.

Meanwhile, it has been revealed that the new chief justice was engaged in a real estate deal with an influential lobbyist which appeared to go further than real estate ventures by other judges which were criticized: got a former law client, West Publishing, to subsidize a lecture series at New York University as Abe Fortas did at American University; and finally that he spoke at the Institute for Democratic

Letter to the Editor

MRS. MAXINE SHAW (Sedalia) — Sedalians are kept on their toes by being interested in city problems. So we inquire did this plan for City Hall, when and where we get it, include a place for city prisoners? Also is this Mr. Miller's idea. With a wonderful young mayor, Sedalia has finally gotten ahead of some stumbling blocks. If we could keep him our city would prosper. More young men should try to get on city council and help keep our city growing. On the subject of schools, we have always had boundary lines. This is nothing new, for sure. Smith-Cotton is doing a remarkable job with the space available there and deserves more credit than criticism. The kids get along. Why can't the grownups realize this? It is not all the colored folks making the noise, if you listen carefully!

U.S. Aid Is Anything but In Black Capital Ventures

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Though here and there some successes are reported, "black capitalism" is having its troubles.

Some black leaders and other supporters of the idea are laying it on the Nixon administration for too sluggish a response to the calls for capital assistance in ghetto areas.

Almost no rebuilding has occurred in city sectors ravaged by the riots of April, 1968. Inquiry discloses that where federal, state and local agencies are involved, they are too often in totally stalemated conflict. They cannot agree, and nothing is done.

The problems are deep-seated. Some stem from the fact that certain large federal programs designed to be helpful to the poor have destructive side effects. Others result from hobbling misconceptions many northern city political and business leaders have about blacks.

Black capitalism is not, of course, a new thing. For decades, Atlanta has had a fairly well-developed black business establishment with banks, insurance firms, a major newspaper and many commercial outlets. Black retail stores and service enterprises flourish in many cities.

But federal programs frequently wipe out some of these endeavors even as they move in to "help the poor."

Author Jane Jacobs, specialist on the life of cities, notes that in the 1950s more than 1,300 commercial enterprises (most owned by Puerto Ricans) and upwards of 500 non-commercial establishments were wiped out in New York's East Harlem through the construction of $300 million worth of public housing.

For the 200,000 people living in that district, the economic problems today are worse than before the heavy outlay was made.

Urban renewal, conceived from the noblest of purposes, is another federal villain. Question neighborhood leaders in city after city and you find it hard to decide who hates renewal programs most—the blacks whose homes and businesses are displaced or the whites who fear the consequent scattering of blacks to other sectors.

Highways are a special case. Their backers make no pretense that they help the poor. That they do damage to the struggling enterprises of the poor when routed through their areas is clear.

In one instance in New York City, it was estimated that a two-mile stretch of highway would wipe out or dislocate 800 businesses that employed 10,000 people.

But this is just part of the story. Many northern leaders like to explain away economic stagnation in the ghetto by blaming the South for inadequately educating and training the millions of blacks who have migrated north.

Yet Miss Jacobs, in her new book, "The Economy of Cities," suggests that northerners have fastened on ghetto residents another grave deficiency—a shortage of development capital.

Too many times in the past quarter-century, she says, prosperous American cities have chosen to export abroad their immense accumulations of excess capital, at great loss to their own areas.

The exported capital, she adds, represented money that was NOT spent in the expensive business of economic trial, error and development by blacks (and others) in American cities.

Her crucial point is that many blacks could have been found who could have made effective use of this home-generated capital, but that white bankers and other businessmen either ignored them or set terms that were unrealistically rigid and hence discouraging.

Some northern cities at times have had laws barring black entrepreneurship or have otherwise squelched black economic activity.

The U.S. government thus far has hardly been more encouraging. Small Business Administration loans often have contained crippling restrictions, like insisting the recipient be at "poverty level." Obviously, the man who has made some advance is the better risk.

Soaring welfare costs might today be far lower if even a modest proportion of the sums now pouring into that sterile channel had earlier been loaned for the investments of black and other poor.

We can think of a lot of old adages to fit today's hand. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," perhaps, or "Don't count your chickens before they're hatched."

Returning to bridge we might point out that overtricks are nice in rubber bridge but declarer should concentrate on making his contract and that a finesse is never proven until the defender who may hold the key card has shown out of the suit.

We won't go into an analysis of West's choice of opening lead. Suffice to say that he decided to lead through dummy's spade rather than to attack declarer's diamonds. It turned out to be a very wise choice.

South played a low spade from dummy and East was in with the queen. He shifted to the four of hearts and South was in dummy. He considered leading a spade and giving up a second trick in that suit but decided that he had nothing to lose and a lot to gain by attacking diamonds. He played dummy's nine of that suit.

Much to South's surprise the nine held the trick. Now South was ready to go after an overtrick. The diamond finesse had worked once. It was sure to work again.

He led a second diamond. East showed out and West collected four diamond tricks and 100 points above the line. South collected some valuable experience.

Continued Space Program Vital to U.S. Well-Being

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The upcoming historic U.S. landing on the moon, will force the United States to make one of this decade's great decisions:

Where are we going in space and how much of our national resources in men and money are we going to spend?

The question has already been raised. As with military spending, and the opposition to the antiballistic missile system, it is questioned whether continued heavy spending on space is the best use of our funds — when this nation is faced with such major problems in poverty, disease, the slums and racial inequality.

From the bits and pieces of data available on the Soviet space programs, it is already clear Moscow has made its decision. Russia will push ahead on a strong schedule. And, where science is concerned, the Russians have up to now proven themselves hard-headed, not about to throw a ruble where it is not needed.

The decisions the United States makes on its space program may determine the future of the United States in the world.

This reporter has come to the conclusion that a drastic cutback in the after-the-moon space program could injure the social program advances in health, poverty, unemployment and opportunities for minorities.

Most social scientists and most of those in minority and poverty groups this reporter has talked to agree that a major indispensable requirement in improving the lot of the Negro and the slum dweller is to develop more jobs and better jobs and the education to enable the under-privileged to fill these jobs.

Economic data indicates it is those companies and industries which have spent the most on research that have expanded most rapidly and provided the greatest numbers of new jobs. If that money had been spent directly on aid, instead of research, it may be that poverty and unemployment would be greater today.

Space is opening up some very real man-helping programs.

Manned space flight, for example, has been a major element in the stimulus back of the rapid development of computer technology which has resulted in the astounding expansion of the computer industry.

Now the computer industry grosses $20 billion a year and provides jobs for 800,000 Americans. That's one of every 100 jobs in the United States.

If the programs are not canceled for want of funds, in a few years satellites will be able to measure the snow cover and the rate of snow melting in our mountains, thus predict water runoff well before it occurs. This will make it possible to prevent dangerous floods here and abroad. Through the proper control of water runoff at dams it will make possible tens and perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars a year in electric power costs.

Satellite crop watchers will be able to catch diseases in their infancy, save untold acres of grains and other crops each year, preventing starvation in many developing countries.

These are but samples of many promising programs that will more than pay their way once the development costs are funded. These programs and the techniques developed will have direct and indirect application to the bettering of life in the United States and abroad.

If man constantly challenges himself beyond his limits with solving new problems in science, and space is one of the major frontiers of science, then these changes in turn will revolutionize our lives for the better.

As these new concepts are applied, there will be a demand for more men (employment) and for men with better skills (education).

We will not be able to afford slums, dropouts or prejudice on the job, for these mean a waste in manpower. In such a developing age, manpower will become increasingly tight.

Botulism Symptoms Vary in Severity

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Since writing about the odorless dust-proofing compound for spraying on furniture and drapes to control asthmatic attacks, I have been asked the name of the product. It is sold under the name, Dust Seal.

Q — What are the symptoms of botulism? How long does it last?

A — This food poisoning, caused by Clostridium botulinum, usually follows eating foods canned at home when less than sufficient heat (180 degrees for at least 30 minutes) is used. The symptoms, which appear 18 to 36 hours after eating the contaminated food, include pain in the chest, difficult breathing, double vision and sometimes vomiting. Although in severe cases the disease is rapidly fatal, spontaneous recovery occurs in 35 per cent of the victims within seven or eight days.

Q — Can one get botulism from eating fresh vegetables that have been refrigerated but not washed?

A — No. The botulinum organism grows only in a total absence of air. But don't make this an excuse for not washing fresh vegetables before eating them.

Q — How does osteoporosis affect one? What treatment is best?

A — In mild cases, osteoporosis causes no symptoms. In advanced cases, especially in a vertebra, the bone may collapse. This may or may not be accompanied by pain, depending on whether or not a nerve is pinched. In either case, there is some deformity.

The disease is seen most frequently in women who are past 50. The best treatment is prevention through daily exercise, female hormones and small doses of fluoride and calcium. After a collapse, these measures may still be of value in addition to the wearing of a back brace for a few weeks.

Q — I have osteoporosis. My doctor is giving me calcium by mouth and injection. Is there any danger of getting too much calcium?

A — An adult should get 800 milligrams of calcium in his diet daily. When larger amounts are taken, the excess is eliminated. An excess of calcium in the blood can occur only if you have an overactive thyroid, multiple myeloma, sarcoidosis or vitamin D poisoning.

Motorists' Mileage

During the year 1968, motorists of the United States drove a total of one trillion, 10 billion miles. This is the equivalent of more than 40 million trips around the earth.

Lucky Lady Loses Co-worker's Cash

Dear Ann Landers: A girl I work with is a fantastically lucky crap shooter. Whenever she has the dice everyone rides her back and cleans up. I've seen her make as many as seven passes in a row.

Two weeks ago Lucky went to Puerto Rico for her vacation. I knew she'd be in the casinos every night — and winning, of course — so I gave her $150 to play for me. I made it plain that if she blew it I wouldn't be mad, although I've never known her to lose.

Two days after Lucky left for her vacation, I received a telegram which said, "I hit a lousy streak and lost your dough. So sorry." I was really shook, but figured it was bound to happen eventually.

Yesterday Lucky returned. She was telling the girls in the cafeteria that she had had a great time — won $600 over and above her expenses. When she saw me standing there, she said,

"Too bad about your $150. My luck changed right after I lost yours. Honey."

What do you think of a friend like that? — Chicken Inspector 21

Dear Chick: I think it's worth $150 to find out what kind of a friend she was.

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend is taking a college summer session in another city. He professes his undying love for me — in writing. His letters are wildly passionate and highly descriptive. I would die if a member of the family opened one by mistake.

In yesterday's letter he admonished me for not responding in equally ardent language. He says my letters are guarded and noncommittal. Now I'm beginning to wonder if he writes those torrid letters for his own erotic pleasure and wishes me to respond in kind for additional stimulation, or if he wants me to put it in writing

so he can show his friends? — Big Dolly

Dear Doll: It's entirely possible that your boyfriend gets his jollies from composing red-hot epistles. But he should burn 'em, not mail 'em. Explain that he must not put in writing anything he wouldn't want read aloud to your mother — and that you practice what you preach.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin married three months ago. She is so proud of having snagged a professional man it's revolting. The payoff is this: She introduces herself as Mrs. Dr. Whatchamacallit. The other day when I told her it was not in good taste, she replied, "It saves time. When I say Mrs. Whatchamacallit, people always ask if I'm related to the eye specialist."

Who is right? — Feet First
Dear Feet: You are, of course, but conserve your breath to cool your soup, Lovey. Your cousin is not interested in taste — she's interested only in letting people know she married a doctor.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Prince Charming's Mask Vanished With Marriage

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing unmasks a man like marriage.

Then the gilt wears off, and the brute beneath Prince Charming discloses the truth of what he really is—a beast in a white shirt.

As many a woman can testify:

Before the ceremony he used to read her love poems as he ran his fingers through her tangled curls. Now he looks up from his morning paper only to gripe about the burnt toast and complain about her curlers.

When she was a bride, he swept her off her feet and lightly carried her bodily across the threshold of their tiny new apartment. But let her try to sit in his lap today and he groans as if she had become an elephant.

Once he promised that if she would only be his, he'd climb the highest mountain and swim the deepest sea for her. Is that still true? Hardly. If she even asks him to carry out the garbage, he wants to make a federal case out of it.

When he was courting her, he willingly borrowed at the bank in order to shower her with pretty presents. Today if she wants to buy a new pair of shoes, he coldly asks her, "Do you think money grows on trees?"

There was a time when he would leap to his feet and rush across the room to light her cigarette. That was before she told the minister, "I do." Now, she feels uneasy, he probably wouldn't get off the sofa to help her if she suddenly burst into flames.

In the old days he was glad to take her dancing until dawn. Now, on the once-a-month he takes her out for an evening, she is lucky if he fox trots her once around a tiny night club dance floor before sinking back exhausted in his chair.

Before, he was interested in her views about everything. Now if she voices an opinion about anything, he says cuttingly, "Look who's talking."

"No wife of mine is ever going to have to work," he told her when he was her suitor. But now that he has been wed to her for a while, he spends half of every Sunday going through the want ad pages looking for a job she can handle.

In her idle hours she wonders what she could have done wrong to change her gallant suitor into the selfish monster he has become.

She did only one thing wrong — she married the bum. Then, like any other husband, he simply reverted to type.

Mine Dump Fire Burns for a Year

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — People wondered why the area around an old, abandoned coal mine south of here remained free of snow last winter. They found out. The mine dump has been afire for a year.

A grass and timber fire which swept over the area and burned several thousand acres last July 4 apparently ignited the dump.

Kennedy May Lose In Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy, the Senate's No. 2 Democrat, and his allies in opposition to Otto F. Otepka's appointment to the Subversive Activities Control Board, have all but conceded their fight to block the nomination.

Kennedy said in advance of today's debate that he would speak out against Otepka's appointment to the $36,000-a-year job, but he knew of no organized effort to head off the nomination.

When the appointment was in the Senate Judiciary Committee, Kennedy attacked Otepka because they said he was supported by the John Birch Society and the Liberty Lobby, an ultra-conservative group.

The committee voted 12-3 to send the nomination to the floor with the majority report citing Otepka, who once was fired as a State Department security evaluator, as "a fine example of the best type of career civil servant."

Otepka was nominated by Nixon March 20 to fill out an unexpired term on the 5-member board that runs until August 9, 1970. However, his supporters expect he will win reappointment to a full term.

Former chief security evaluator for the State Department, Otepka has been a center of controversy since superiors accused him of unauthorized disclosure of confidential personnel files to the Senate internal security subcommittee.

In December 1967, after reviewing the case, the then Secretary of State Dean Rusk changed the dismissal order to demotion, transfer and reprimand.

Kennedy was joined by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., in a Judiciary Committee minority report saying Rusk's action was "pointedly not reversed by his Republican successor." William P. Rogers.

Frazier Batters Quarry; Ellis is Next Opponent

NEW YORK (AP) — Minutes after Joe Frazier had destroyed game, half-blinded Jerry Quarry in seven rounds of an impressive title defense, the unbeaten Philadelphia and WBA champion Jimmy Ellis challenged each other in the Madison Square Garden ring. It looked like a fight natural in the making for the disputed crown in September between Frazier, the six-state king of the heavyweights, and Ellis, the World Boxing Association's champion from Louisville, Ky.

But Ellis may take on former champion Sonny Liston first in Los Angeles, Houston, or Las Vegas in late July or early June.

Frazier and Ellis had their verbal battle shortly after the ring physician, Dr. Harry Kleiman, had come to Quarry's rescue and ordered the one-sided fight stopped after the seventh round. In New York it was listed as a seventh-round technical knockout.

Quarry, who had come tearing out in the first round like a hungry tiger after a lamb, was cut and puffed under the right eye in the third round. Unable to see from the eye, he absorbed a fearsome beating to the head and body from then on although he never was dropped.

"He is a helluva fighter," said Quarry, stopped for the first time in his career (31-3-4). "I couldn't see out of my right eye. I didn't want the fight to be stopped. I wanted to go out punching like a man."

"He was tough but I knew I would get him," said Frazier. "He came to fight."

Frazier's relentless, buzz-saw attack impressed most everyone in the crowd of 16,570 (gross gate $502,518) but it didn't scare Ellis.

Called into the ring for a television interview, he soon was engaged in a shouting battle with Frazier, who still had plenty of fire left.

"He kept hollering I'm next and pointed his finger at me," said Ellis. "I told him I would beat him and shut his mouth. I want that man."

Frazier said he told Ellis "You're no champ. You won't fight anybody. A champ's got to fight everybody."

Yank Durham, Frazier's manager and trainer, told Ellis. "We're going to take a tune-up with you and then fight Cassius Clay if the government ever turns him loose. But right now Joe's going to rest. He's had four title defenses in a year."

"We'll sign the papers right now," said Angelo Dundee Ellis' manager, "but they're ducking us. That Yank Durham just likes to talk a lot of baloney. We want Frazier. But we're not going to wait forever."

Although Ellis has more territory to reign over, the aggressive, Frazier is the hottest guy in boxing right now.

The 25-year-old musician's devastating destruction of the 24-year-old blond from Bellflower, Calif., was his 24th in as many pro fights and his 22nd knockout. His knockout average of .875 is second only among all heavyweight champions to retired, undefeated Rocky Marciano's .878.

Frazier wears down his opponents like those big iron balls knock down buildings. He is as persistent as a dentist's drill. He keeps coming and punching as if he was afraid he'd be fined for loitering.

Quarry knew he'd come and predicted that he'd knock out Joe in five. The ruggedly handsome blond tried to do it in one.

He surprised the fans, but not Frazier, by rushing to the attack in a sensational and savage first round.

They stood toe-to-toe and hammered each other to the body and head with thudding left hooks. Quarry's right chops to the head provided the difference in the round—the only one Jerry won.

In the second, Frazier took the lead and held it the rest of the way. He kept driving Quarry to the ropes. Late in the second round jolting Joe hurt his man with a left hook to the jaw.

Late in the third he chopped open the inch-wide gash that required eight stitches. At the end of the fourth Dr. Kleiman examined Quarry. And in the sixth Jerry's knees buckled from the smashing blows.

The finish was inevitable. Quarry was fighting with his right hand high to protect his wound. He was dead game but the steam had been taken out of his punches by crunching body blows.

Quarry, at 198½, was a few pounds heavier than expected. Frazier weighed 203½, and was a 2-1 favorite at fight time.

With the closed circuit television and other receipts included, Frazier earned about $350,000 and Quarry around $250,000.

Rozelle Hopes To See Namath On Field Again

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle, accused in some quarters of hounding Broadway Joe Namath out of the game, says he has hopes the New York Jets quarterback will return to the fold.

Rozelle commented Monday he would like to meet with Namath and talk things over soon. No meeting is arranged, and they have not had any contact.

But there are indications, said Rozelle, "we might be able to get together within a week. At least, I hope so."

The commissioner ordered Namath to sell his interest in a popular New York City restaurant-bar called Bachelors III, or face suspension from pro football.

Namath retired rather than divest himself of the business, but has remarked since he wants to continue to play football.

"I've said all along," Rozelle said, "that I'm hopeful Joe will be playing football this fall. I was sorry that Joe retired from pro football. I wouldn't want to say anything else until I talk to Joe."

Capital Raceway to Run Rain-outs on Wednesday

JEFFERSON CITY — The racing season at Capital Raceway in Jefferson City has been hard hit by rain since starting their Saturday night sessions, April 26.

The season's opener was half completed when the rains came.

The following Saturday night, May 3, the first full night of racing was held. May 10 the rain and cold weather forced postponement of the scheduled program.

May 17 races got underway and were just about completed when, during the late model feature race began to fall but not enough to stop the race.

The next three weekends found the gates locked at the Capital track; again the weatherman was no help.

June 14 was a perfect night for racing and the racers and fans flocked to Jefferson City to celebrate almost a month's absence from the track.

When everything looked like it may turn for the better, rain again washed out the program last Saturday night.

Only one-third of the programs have been held at the

Aftermath of Bout

Rites for Ken Williams In Kansas City, Monday

Funeral services for super-modified driver Ken Williams were held Monday morning in Kansas City.

Williams, the 1968 national short track champion, was killed Friday night during the fifth lap of a feature super-modified race at the Mid-America Fairgrounds in Topeka.

"Tiger" Bob Williams, his brother, who was leading the race at the time, accompanied him to Stormont-Vail Hospital where he died of multiple chest injuries, five minutes later.

Williams was in fifth place at the time of the accident, which occurred when he hit the guard rail on the front straightaway.

The car spun sideways and flipped into a chain link fence, where it stopped. The rail and part of the fence entered the driver's compartment.

Williams had made a few appearances at Sportsman's Speedway in Marshall. In this area he could be seen in events on the Missouri State Fairgrounds and at Capital Speedway in Jefferson City.

Williams was born in Smithville in Clay County and was a lifelong area resident of Kansas City. He entered his part-time racing career in 1957. He once told an interviewer that people from all fields are involved in racing and they have a certain feeling about the sport.

"Get to the races early sometime," Williams said, "and try to watch all the action in the pits. You'll see owners loaning tools to another driver, you'll see drivers help each other, you'll see all kinds of help being offered and given."

"That's just the way racing people are," Williams concluded.

He leaves his wife, two sons and a daughter.

'Industrial' Is Outlet For Tickets

Sedalia Industrial Loan & Investment Company, has been named the official Kansas City Royals Reservation Center for Sedalia and central Missouri. The announcement was made by Charles A. Truitt, business manager and treasurer for the Kansas City Royals baseball club.

This designation makes "Industrial" a participating member of a midwest network of selected financial institutions who will provide local Kansas City Royals ticket reservation facilities for their immediate areas. Only one financial institution in each city is selected for this special service.

"We will have a direct hotline to the main Royals ticket office in Kansas City," Claude L. Boul, Industrial's president said, "and we will be able to make reserved and box seat tickets immediately available to all the many Royals supporters in this area."

Ticket orders for night games can be completed up to 1 p.m. the same day of a game and up to 10 a.m. of the same day of a day contest. Ticket requests can also be made in advance for any future date.

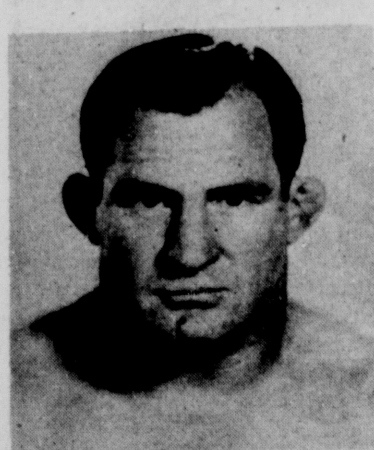

The special hotline validation program enables ticket purchasers to be admitted directly to the ballpark without the inconvenience of having to pick up tickets at hold windows.

Murdock, Cox Will Try To Continue Domination

Pat O'Connor

Tornado Murdock and K.O. Cox will try to continue their domination of area wrestling team action when they collide tonight with veterans Ronnie Etchison and Pat O'Connor.

The tag clash will headline a Convention Hall ring program slated to get under way at 8:30. Because of the anticipated unruliness of the team action, lumberjack rules have been established for the scrap. These call for the stationing of four other wrestlers, plus the referee, outside the ropes to prevent the principals from quitting the fight.

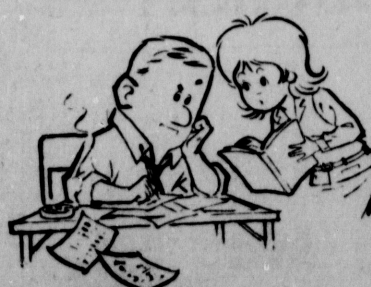

Ronnie Etchison

O'Connor and Etchison should provide solid opposition for their younger, hard-hitting challengers. The two have mastered all the finer points of the game and each is expert with several holds.

Matched in tonight's semifinal are crafty Tor Kamata and Thor Hagen. Kamata gained in stature by putting on a strong offensive display against O'Connor last week.

The Viking, whose thumb jab has been outlawed, will meet Alec Medina in another match. Opening the show will be O'Connor and Cox.

Tailor's Chalk Is Fine For Making a Seam Line

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am a male and enjoy your column as much as the women do. I hope my Pointer will save the girls some eye strain when they are sewing. The other night I ripped the seam in the seat of my black trousers and tried sewing over the original seam to insure its strength but it was impossible to see. I rubbed white tailor's chalk over the seam and presto—a white seam line that was easy to see.—FRANK

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can anyone suggest a way I could make use of some lovely old Haviland tea cups that are minus handles but much too nice to discard?—MRS. L. E.

DEAR POLLY—This summer, patio picnics will be even more pleasant if you make a cover to keep the insects away from the potato salad and cold cuts. Just remove the fabric from an old lamp shade and replace it with cheesecloth.

When camping out, soak blotting paper in insect repellent and wrap around the legs of tables and cots to ward off ants and other crawling insects. A good idea for the picnic table, too, and it certainly makes for more enjoyable eating and sleeping.—ANNE

DEAR POLLY—Debbie should not worry about drying her drinking glasses. I think it is more sanitary not to dry them and they certainly look better, too. Just wash them in good sudsy hot water, then rinse with very hot water, let them dry and they will really sparkle.—MRS. B. P.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to get the shape back into felt and straw hats. Our local cleaners do not block them. Thanks for any help.—DOROTHY

Most Agree on Issues Of Pros and Amateurs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Professional sports and collegiate athletics have no choice but to co-exist. The question is how to ease the frictions which frequently rub one side or the other wrong.

That was the consensus of panelists appearing before the 4th annual convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics here Monday to consider the topic, "College-Professional Athletics — Can They Co-exist?"

"We will live together because we must live together," said football Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "Competition is a fact of life."

"The pros aren't going to go away, and they're going to continue to be competition for the entertainment dollar," said Big Eight Commissioner Wayne Duke. "Saying it plainly, the pros are here to stay, and so are we."

The panelists decided that better communication is the basic answer to misunderstanding between the two spheres. They were particularly concerned about pro baseball signing players with college eligibility, and mediocre cooperation given pro baseball scouts by the colleges, even when the scouts seek to cooperate.

When Charles Neinas, assistant executive director of the NCAA asked National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy, a panelist, why pro basketball had hampered efforts to enlist the best U.S. players for the 1968 Olympic team, Kennedy replied:

"Why didn't somebody advise us of these situations at the time so we could do something about it?"

"The lines of communication must be maintained at all times," said Bill Reed, commissioner of the Big Ten. However, Reed added that the pros' methods sometimes "constitute threats to co-existence."

Another panelist, Stu Holcomb, former Northwestern University athletic director and now a vice president of the Chicago White Sox, proposed that baseball pump $500,000 per club into collegiate baseball in the future to build it to the level the pros want it to be. Holcomb estimated 100 schools could receive $100,000 each. There was no indication the plan will be implemented, however.

Rix Yard, athletic director at Tulane, was the other panelist. "To me, it's not a question of can we co-exist, but how do we co-exist," said Yard. He cited the fact that Tulane rents its 80,000-seat stadium, the Sugar Bowl, to the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League and said, "Believe me, the fact we rent to them greatly aids our athletic program."

Rozelle attacked the NCAA's policy which frowns on colleges renting their facilities to professional teams. "I think," Rozelle said, "if a school thinks it fits its need (to rent), it should be permitted to make that decision."

Rozelle cited areas of joint stadium ventures, security from gamblers and fighting pay television as those in which the pros and colleges can work very closely together.

Military Leaders Might Fight Troop Reductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's announced hope of substantial U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam over the next 18 months is expected by congressional defense experts to encounter considerable resistance from field commanders.

The reason, they say privately, is that those close to the scene have marked reservations about the ability of the South Vietnamese to take over more than a limited share of the fighting burden now carried by U.S. troops.

Many senators, including Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and leading war opponents such as Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., long have been skeptical of the U.S. efforts to have South Vietnamese take over the war.

But growing pressures at home on the Nixon administration to end the war or at least a substantial share of the U.S. commitment are bringing the issue rapidly to a head.

While Gen. Creighton Abrams, the top U.S. commander in Vietnam, agreed with the decision earlier this month to pull out 25,000 of the 538,000 U.S. troops, the congressional observers feel such agreement may be harder to reach if the administration strives to match its reported goal of withdrawing another 75,000 soldiers before the end of 1969.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird reported to Congress March 19 after an inspection trip to Vietnam that "I see no indication that we presently have a program adequate to bring about a significant reduction in the U.S. military contribution in South Vietnam."

U.S. officials were proceeding, he said, "on the premise that no reduction in U.S. personnel would be possible in the absence of total withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops."

In order to spur South Vietnamese development, Laird announced that $156 million was being added to the defense budget for training of and additional equipment for the Saigon Army.

Less than three months later, on June 10, Laird said that

"While it may be difficult to carry out U.S. force reductions until South Vietnamese forces are capable of replacing the forces that we reduce or withdraw, we must greatly increase our efforts to improve RVNAF (Vietnam's armed forces) capabilities and work toward a situation in which U.S. forces can in fact be withdrawn in substantial numbers."

Cape Town, seat of Parliament, is the legislative capital and Pretoria is the administrative capital of the Republic of South Africa.

Bible School Program Ends With Music

Parents and friends of 40 pre-school pupils attending the Sacred Heart Bible School were guests at concluding ceremonies held Friday at the Sacred Heart cafeteria.

Mrs. Fred Karigan at piano, and Julie Bazin with her guitar, accompanied the children as they sang songs learned as part of the curriculum of the two-week program organized by Mrs. William Dick. This is the third year the school has been held for pre-school children of Sacred Heart parish.

Mrs. Dick taught the four-year olds, assisted by Mrs. Leroy Freese. The five-year olds had Mrs. David Rouchka as their teacher, and Mrs. Marvin D. Meyers taught the six-year old group.

Student helpers included Tracy Dick, Barbara Richardson, Kathy Wilson, Carrie Dick, Clarence and Norma Gravitt, Edith Cutler, Maureen Melvin, Cindy Sudduth and Anne Proctor.
